TASSIE’S SHEDS TRANSFORM INTO CONCERT HALLS

In just 3 weeks the farming sheds of North West Tasmania will transform into living, breathing concert halls.

Jump in the car and come on an unforgettable musical journey from cape to cape with Big hART’s The Acoustic Life of Sheds, a free event of Ten Days on the Island festival, on the weekends of 18-19 and 25-26 March.

This is an opportunity to discover the music and the landscape of the dramatic Arcadian NW coast as you’ve never experienced it before as Australia’s finest musicians, composers and sound designers perform new works designed specifically for 5 farming sheds. Along the way, brunch and a late lunch is available featuring the best of paddock to plate produce, as well as local craft beer, wine and ciders.

Chance upon a percussive sound installation in a shed at Boat Harbour, embrace some energetic power pop in a calving shed at Flowerdale, be transported in an old Stables when opera and music theatre collide, open your mind in a barn at Sisters Beach, and get in the groove with some steel guitar in a shearing shed amongst the tulips.

The Acoustic Life of Sheds is presented by Big hART’s 20+20, a partnership project that backs young people on the north west coast to build a passion for careers, self-entrepreneurship, and to be change-makers in their community. Thirty 20+20 participants are working with professional mentors and performing artists to produce the forty concerts over two weekends, honing skills in site management, digital storytelling, artist liaison, paddock to plate hospitality training, and venue hosting. Held on the weekends of 18-19 and 24-25 March, take the complete 5-shed tour or follow your nose to any for the set performance time.
